

This is G o o g l e's cache of <http://www.theolympian.com/northwest/v-print/story/142062.html> as retrieved on Jun 29, 2007 11:00:40 GMT.
G o o g l e's cache is the snapshot that we took of the page as we crawled the web.
The page may have changed since that time. Click here for the current page without highlighting.
This cached page may reference images which are no longer available. Click here for the cached text only.
To link to or bookmark this page, use the following url: <http://www.google.com/search?q=cache:ZXjStHwJ26MJ:www.theolympian.com/northwest/v-print/story/142062.html+jenkins+biodiesel+nampa&hl=en&ct=clnk&cd=34&gl=us>

Google is neither affiliated with the authors of this page nor responsible for its content.

These search terms have been highlighted: jenkins biodiesel nampa

Published June 21, 2007

Idaho family wants to drive cross-country in biodiesel motorhome

A family from Nampa plans to drive a biodiesel-powered motorhome across the U.S., in a route that aims for sites that offer the nontoxic plant-based fuels.

Christina Jenkins says she and her husband, Taylor, have "always been interested in energy conservation and renewable energy - and wanted to combine that with public service."

So they're using a 2006 Gulfstream motorhome whose engine won't require any modifications.

That means if they can't find any biodiesel, they can still fill up on regular diesel fuel.

They plan to head through cities including Salt Lake City, Rockford, Illinois and Washington D-C.

Along the way, they want to stop at energy fairs and research labs to get attention for their trip.

Press-Tribune